Project Details
Aim	Through the Construction General Collective Agreement (CGSC), this system has been implemented, which focuses on three basic pillars: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - The training contents in OHS, per occupation and trade in the construction sector. - The homologation of the Training Entities. - The TPC. In compliance with this legal mandate: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - An application procedure for the TPC has been set up which currently includes: the applicant's data accrediting their compulsory training in the field of occupational risk prevention; the professional category and experience in the sector; the performance of medical examinations established by law; any other training received. TPC also facilitates access to the services of the FLC. - The TPC has been provided with a physical support that allows its reading through new technologies, so that access to this information is immediate.
Target groups	The workers who develop their profession in the construction sector, Construction companies and subcontractors.
Exchange of Experiences
Outcomes 1	TPC accredits the training received in the field of occupational risk prevention, which allows verification of legal compliance with the existence of this training, in accordance with the provisions of both the General Collective Agreement of the Construction, and any other training received in the field of OHS. It accredits the training received of any other type during the development of your professional career: university, VET, and the performance of the relevant medical examinations.
Outcomes 2	More than 700,000 workers in the sector have been issued with the TPC. This has been achieved thanks to the regularisation of the sector in the field of OHS.

Skills-Shortages	The worker can accredit quickly and easily when the worker: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - acquires the skills through training in H&S and other skills owned by the worker - any other type of training - work experience.
Training	It would be recommended that all those workers who provide their services within the construction sector own the TPC, given that it provides important advantages both to the person who provides the service or work, as well as to the person who hires the worker, giving confidence to the system, as the TPC is the most used instrument to accredit the compulsory training and also to provide information about the worker's skills. Each worker holding a TPC should keep it updated with the training received and the work experience acquired.
